Chicano/Latino Studies 289
Sociology 289
Intersections in Education
Fall 2017
M, 10:00 am-12:50 pm
Room: SST 318

Dr. Glenda M. Flores
Office: SST 371
E-mail: gmflores@uci.edu
Office Hours: T, Th: 11:00-12:30 p.m.
(Phone: (949) 824-4664)
Office Hours: T, Th: 11:00-12:30 p.m.
(and by appointment)
Course Website: https://eee.uci.edu/17f/61520
Password: schools

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is offered by the Department of Chicano/Latino Studies and the Department of Sociology and is open to graduate students from all departments and programs. The majority of the readings we will explore are ethnographic based studies conducted by scholars who creatively use educational settings to advance their premises and theoretical argument(s).

A major objective of the course will be to have a clear understanding of the classical and contemporary education-related theories scholars have developed to assess their contributions (and gaps) in order to push our own work forward. Of special importance, this course will use an intersectionalities theoretical perspective—the inextricable link of various social locations—to get a more comprehensive overview of educational research. The course begins with one of the earliest texts that examined the social construction of gender and gendered dynamics in classrooms. It then elucidates the various ways that scholars use schools and classrooms as a means to carry-out their research and advance their theoretical contribution(s). Topics to be discussed include: gendered dynamics in the classroom, cultural capital, racialization processes, immigration, segmented assimilation, the first generation experience, undocumented status, masculinity, femininity, and sexualities, to name a few. We will investigate questions such as: How do scholars use educational contexts to advance their particular theoretical framework(s)? How can we conduct research with vulnerable populations? How can we get IRB approval to conduct our research in schools? And, how does an intersectionalities framework enhance our work?

As a final point, this course is designed to provide graduate students with the tools to conduct research with diverse populations within the realm of education. The material presented will draw from interdisciplinary arenas in order to develop a critical and thoughtful understanding of the foundational elements of ethnographic studies in education.

REQUIRED TEXTS:
2. Ferguson, Ann Arnett. 2001. Bad Boys: Public Schools in the Making of Black

Readings marked with an (*) can be found on the course website.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS and EVALUATION OF ASSIGNMENTS

SEMINAR PARTICIPATION and ATTENDANCE (10%)
This seminar is based on active student participation in class discussions. You are expected to attend every class meeting prepared to discuss the assigned reading. It is your responsibility to read all course material(s) prior to class. Excessive absences and constant disruptive behavior such as texting or gchat will result in a failing class participation grade. Computers should be used to take notes only. Part of your participation grade will also include a short 5-10 minute presentation of your research paper during Week 10.

REACTION PAPER/ORAL PRESENTATIONS (30%) AND FINAL PAPERS (60%)

1. Preparation of two brief (2-3) page reaction papers. Twice during the term each student will be asked to prepare a paper reacting to the week’s readings. These should be more than summaries; they should raise questions, issues, criticisms, and connections to other ideas we have considered. During the week(s) when your reaction papers are due, you will be asked to present some ideas and questions to the group and to help facilitate group discussion. (We will allocate these assignments during the first class session). Your oral presentation should centrally address an issue or set of issues directly related to the week’s readings, but you should go beyond the assigned reading and draw connections with (or point to contrasts between) other readings that we have previously read and discussed.

2. A research paper of about 15-20 pages, addressing a topic relevant to the course. This paper can take any format (i.e. literature review, theoretical paper, empirically driven) and is meant to help you with your own research projects and departmental requirements. The paper is due in Debbie Michel’s office (SST 385) on Monday, December 11th at 12:30 pm.
Evaluation:
60%: Final Research paper:
30%: Two reaction papers and oral presentations (15% each)
10%: Attendance and class participation

Any special learning needs should be brought to my attention as soon as possible

Note: This syllabus may be slightly modified throughout the quarter.

SCHEDULE OF READINGS

Week 1: October 2

Overview of Class Requirements, Assignments and Sign-Up

Short Film: “Fear and Learning at Hoover Elementary”

Weekly Topic(s): We examine how macro-structural policies trickle down and affect people at the everyday micro-level.

Week 2: October 9

The Social Construction of Gender

Weekly Topic(s): We examine one element of the hidden curriculum of schooling and how it influences academic achievement.

Week 3: October 16

Race, Punishment and Masculinity

Weekly Topic(s): We examine how race and gender intersect in the lives of young boys of color.

Week 4: October 23

Immigration, Gender and Social Mobility

Weekly Topic(s): We examine how race, gender and class intersect and figure into race-gender experiences and outlooks. How do these studies figure into segmented assimilation theory?

Week 5: October 30

Undocumented Status and Educational Prospects

Weekly Topic(s): We examine how undocumented status impacts the lives of college-goers and early-exiters.

Week 6: November 6
Cultural Capital and Subtractive Schooling

Valenzuela, Angela. 1999. Subtractive Schooling. SUNY.

Weekly Topic(s): We examine how cultural capital is traditionally understood and defined and how it leads to its intergenerational transfer or lack thereof.

Week 7: November 13
Latina/o Cultural Resources and Gaining Access to Schools

Weekly Topic(s): What do we mean by Latina/o cultural resources? How does a multi-site study enrich our findings? How are students racialized in different ways?

Week 8: November 20
Research Day-Work on Papers

Week 9: November 27
Criminalizing Boys of Color

Weekly Topic(s): We examine the school to prison pipeline for boys of color.

Week 10: December 4
Sexualities

Weekly Topic(s): We examine how sexualities impact the learning experience.

LAST CLASS: 10 Minute presentations of research papers and feedback

Finals Week: Monday, December 11: Research Paper Due in Debbie Michel’s Office at 12:30 p.m. in (SST 385)

PLEASE FILL OUT THE COURSE EVALUATION FORM!!

HAVE A GREAT BREAK!